Bluebird At The Beach

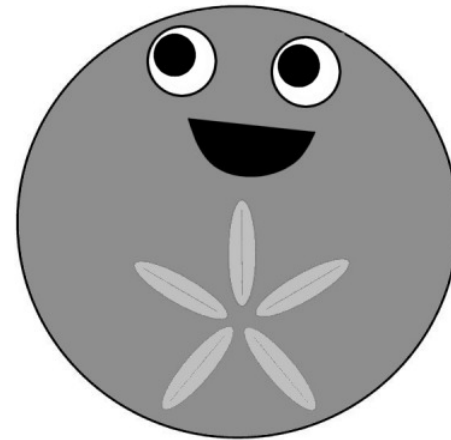

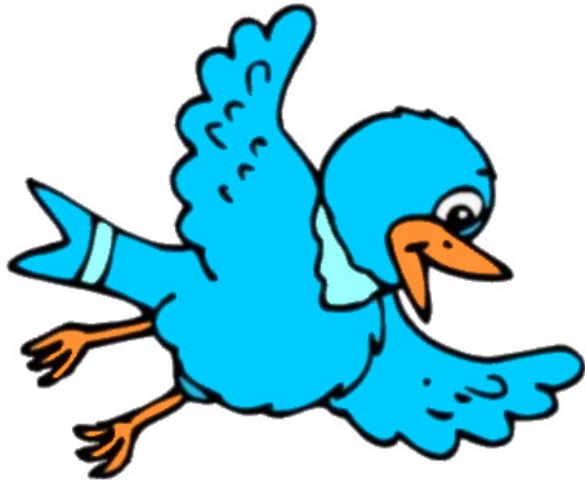

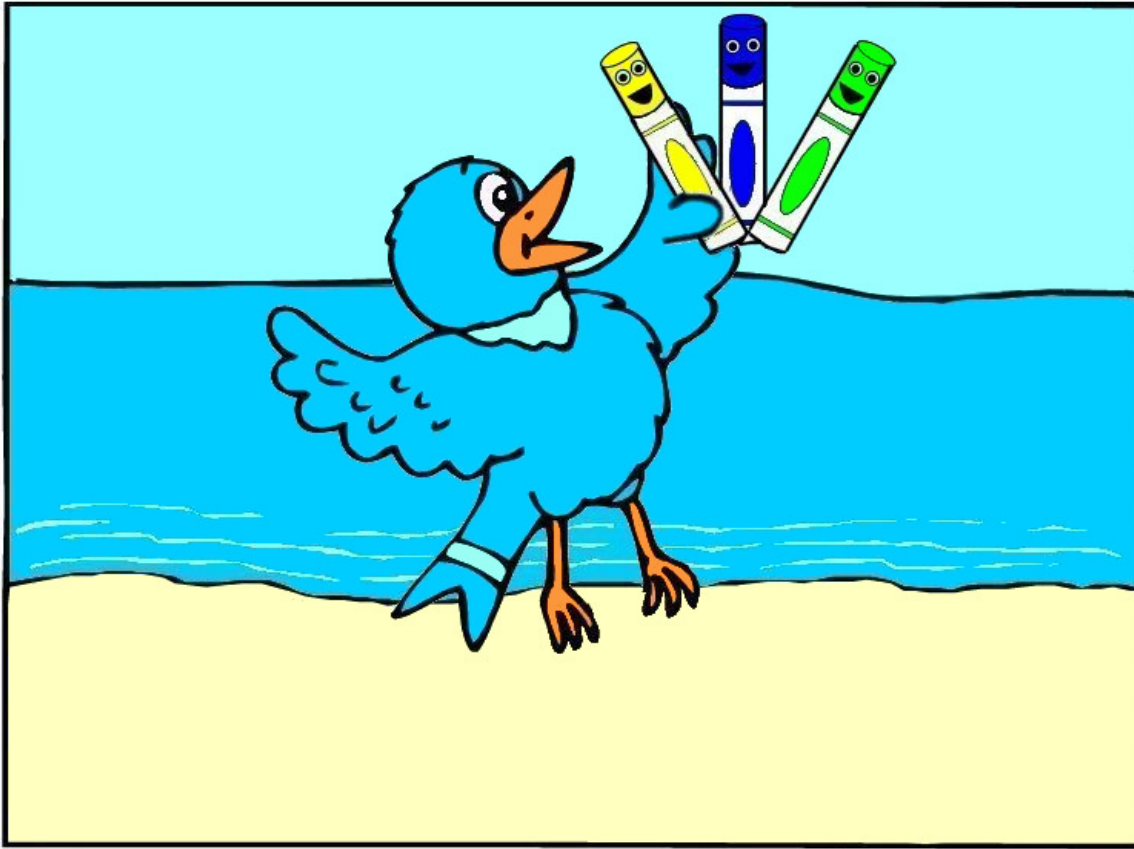

Bluebird was flying around the beach when she saw her friend Cathy the clam and tweeted, "hello" to her. Who was that? Wondered Cathy the clam is someone playing hide n seek with me, she looked around but didn't see anyone. "Up here, flying above you," giggled bluebird. Cathy looked up and yelled there you are I found you to her friend bluebird. Bluebird waved and continued on her way around the beach.

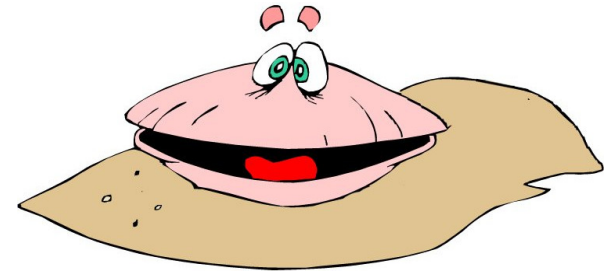

Bluebird continued flying around the beach until she saw her friend Staci the Starfish and tweeted "hello" to her. Hmm, that sounds like bluebird thought Staci, she looked around and saw bluebird flying overhead. Staci waved an extra big hello to her good friend bluebird.

Bluebird continued flying around the beach until she saw her friend Sammy the sand dollar and tweeted "hello" to him. Sammy the sand dollar looked up and smiled a happy hello to his friend Bluebird. Bluebird was his best friend! Sammy was bored and asked Bluebird. "Hey Bluebird do you want to play?" "Yes," replied Bluebird. "I'm going to fly around and look for something fun for us to do. I'll be right back!" "Okay," smiled Sammy the sand dollar!

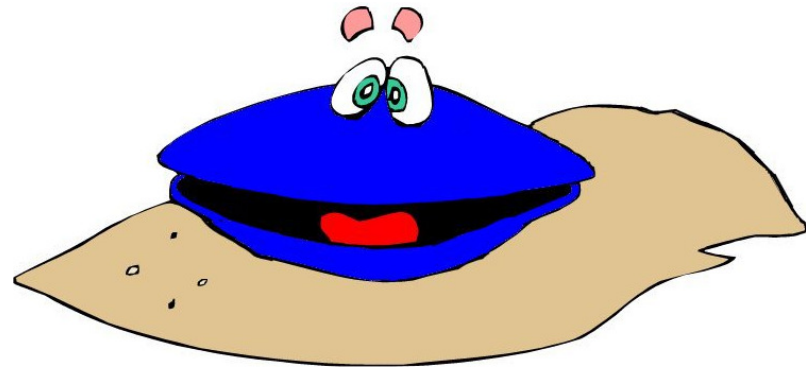

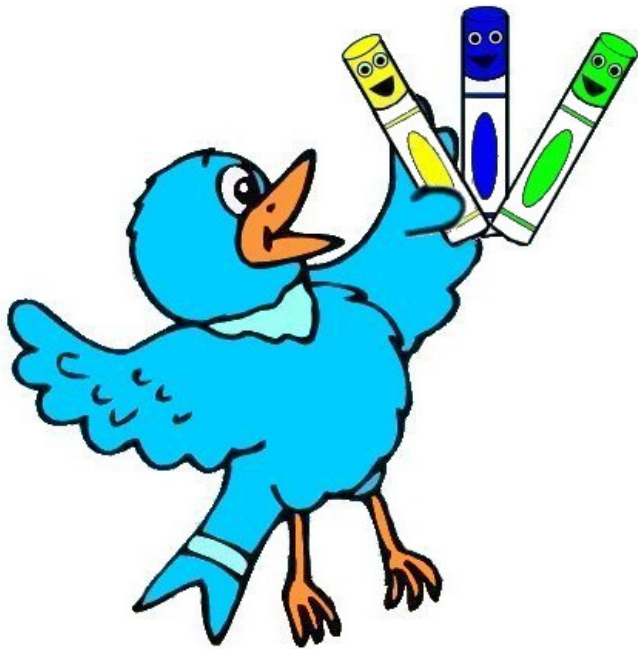

Bluebird flew around the entire beach until she saw something very colorful in the sand. She flew down to check it out. "Wow, Look what I found," she yelled to all of her friends.

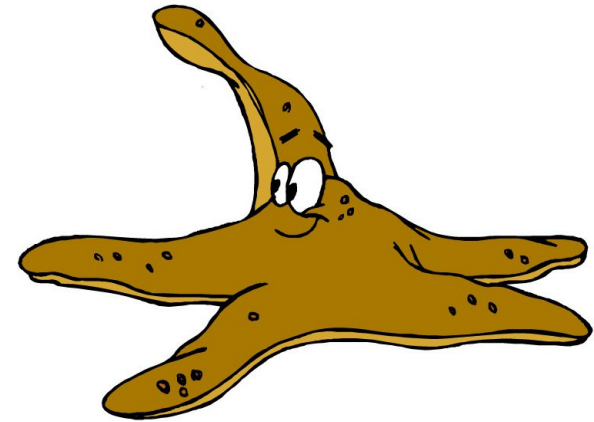

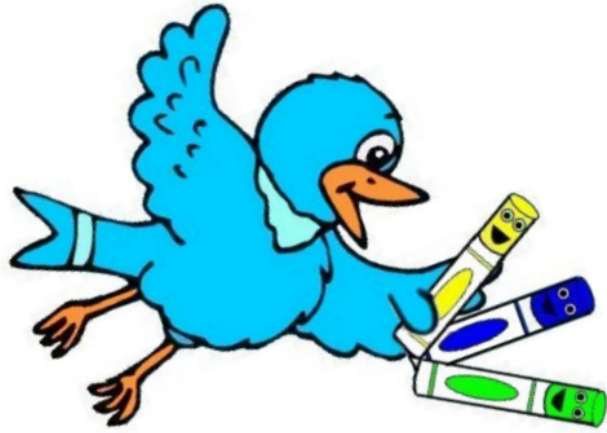

Bluebird quickly flew over to Cathy the clam to show her the colorful objects she had just found. "Look at my beautiful treasures," smiled Bluebird. "Oh those are markers," said Cathy the clam. You can use them to change the colors of things. I see children on the beach coloring the pictures in books with markers all the time. It looks like lots of fun!" Cathy squealed with excitement!

"Oh no, we don't have any books to color," said Bluebird with a frown. "Let me think," said Cathy the Clam, Oh! Oh! Oh! I have an idea! You could color me! Can you color me?" "Yes, yes, that sounds like fun. I can color you blue like me," tweeted Bluebird happily. "I always wanted to be blue," smiled Cathy!

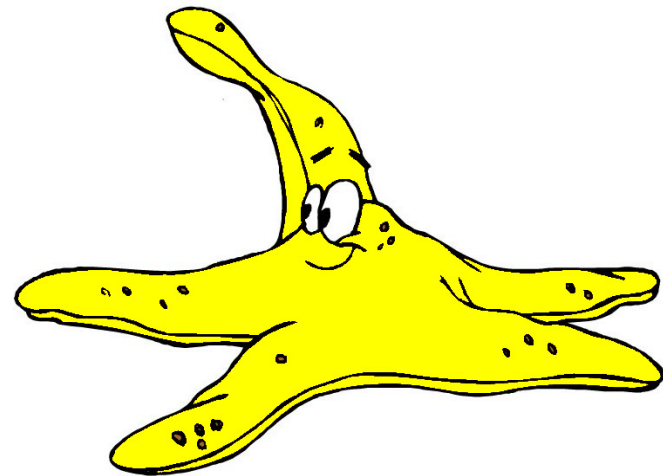

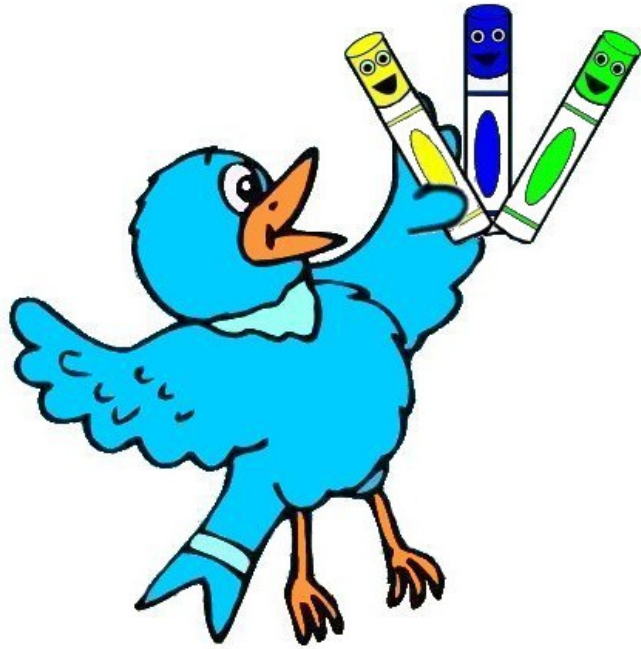

So Bluebird got to work coloring Cathy the clam blue! Hee, hee, hee...haa, haa, haa, stop, stop, it tickles laughed Cathy. "It's ok, I am all done, you are now blue just like me," smiled bluebird very happy with her work. "Wow that was fun, giggled Cathy, oh you need to color Staci the starfish, she will just love it!"

Oh, yes, what a great idea! Bluebird was so excited she almost dropped her new markers as she flew off to find Staci the starfish. Oh, where is Staci thought bluebird as she flew around the beach looking for her friend.

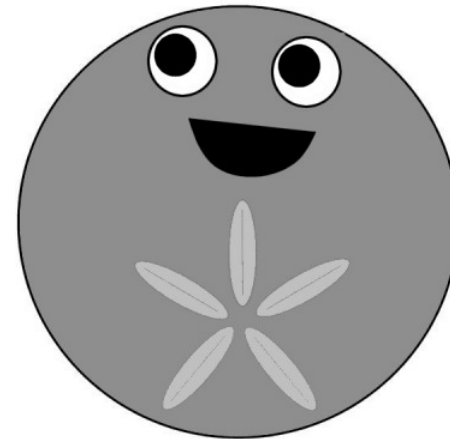

Oh! There she is thought bluebird as she quickly flew over to Staci the starfish to show her the new markers. "Look Staci, look what I have!" "What are you going to do with those?" asked Staci the starfish. "Well, I thought you may like me to color you." "Color me?" asked Staci.

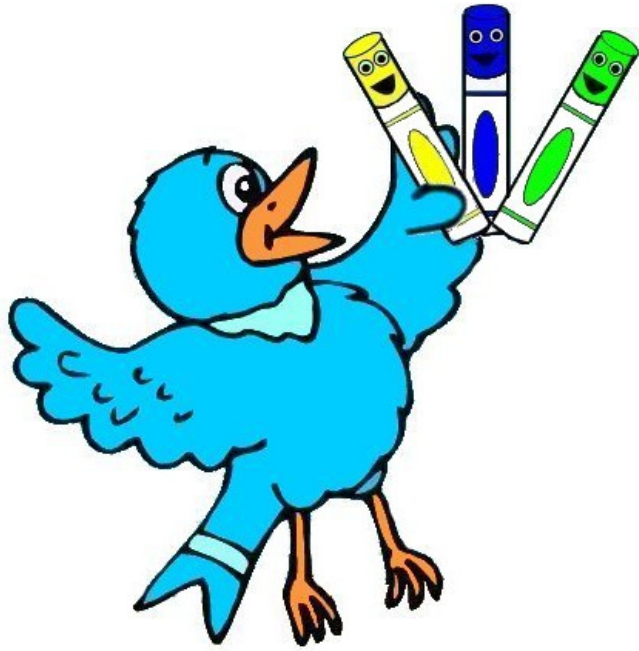

"Well, I just colored clam blue and she loves being blue she thought you may like to be blue too" "Wow, I have never been colored before, it sounds like fun, but I see you have a yellow marker too and I really love the color yellow, can you color me yellow instead," pleaded Staci. "Of course!" smiled Bluebird just happy to be coloring with her new treasure!"

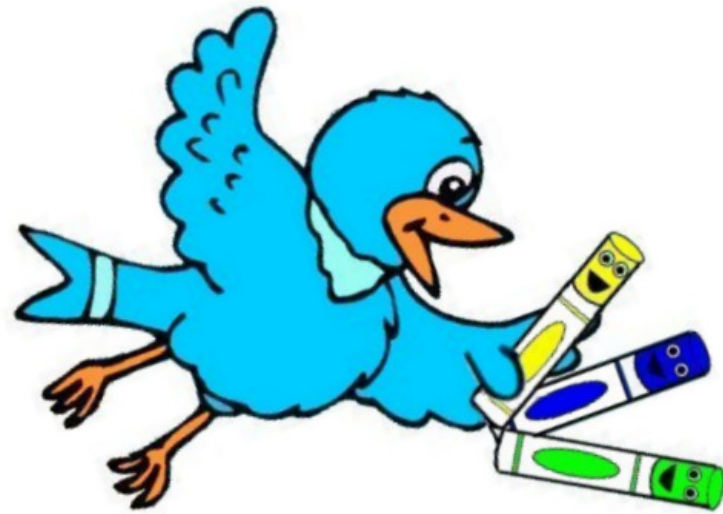

"There, I am all done, you are now yellow. Wow, you look great," exclaimed Bluebird with excitement!" Bluebird was very excited about her new markers as she flew off to find Sammy the Sand dollar and show him what she found on the beach.

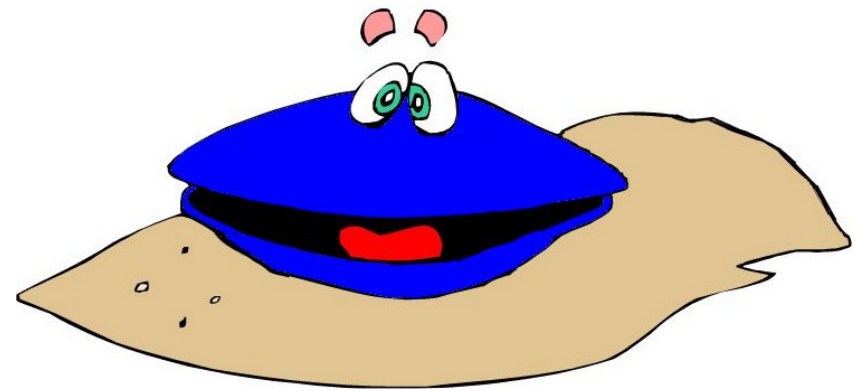

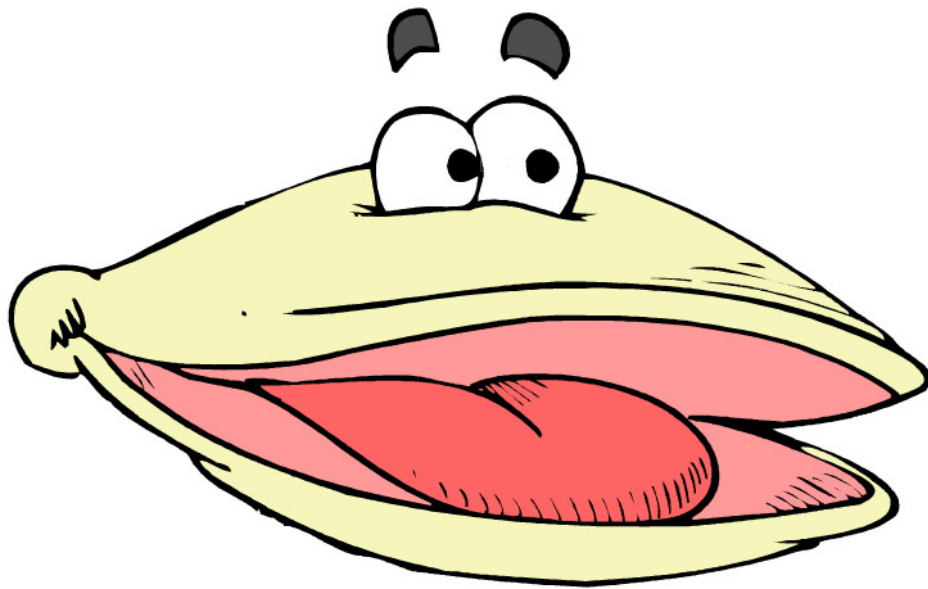

She flew quickly over to Sammy the sand dollar to show him the new markers. "What are you going to do with those?" asked Sammy sand dollar. "Well, I colored clam blue and she looks great blue, and I colored Staci the starfish yellow and wow, she looks great yellow. I could color you your favorite color, would you like that?" "Yes, yes, color me green, please! I always wanted to be green!"

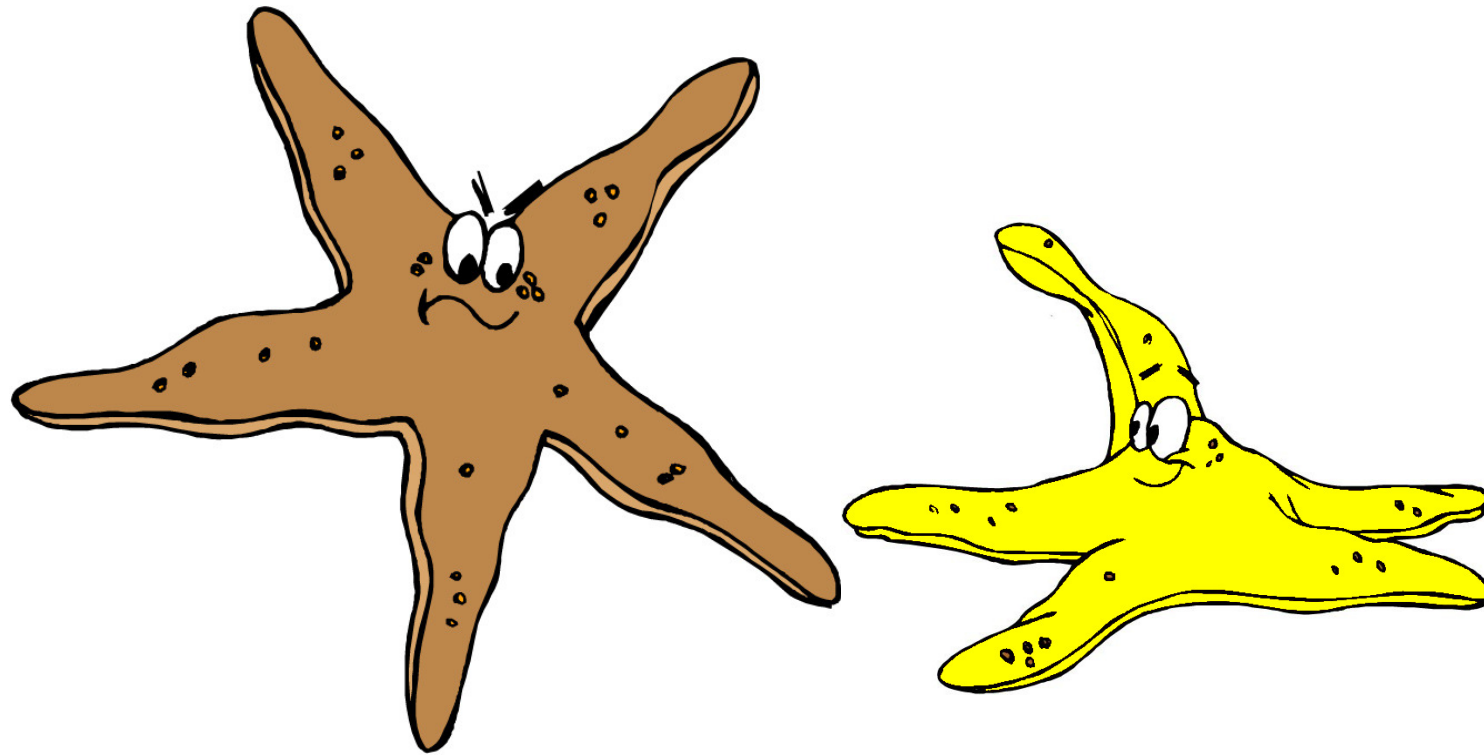

"There, I am all done, you are now green. Wow, you look great, smiled Bluebird very proud of her work!"
Bluebird was very excited about her new markers and she was thinking what a great job she did coloring all of her friends.

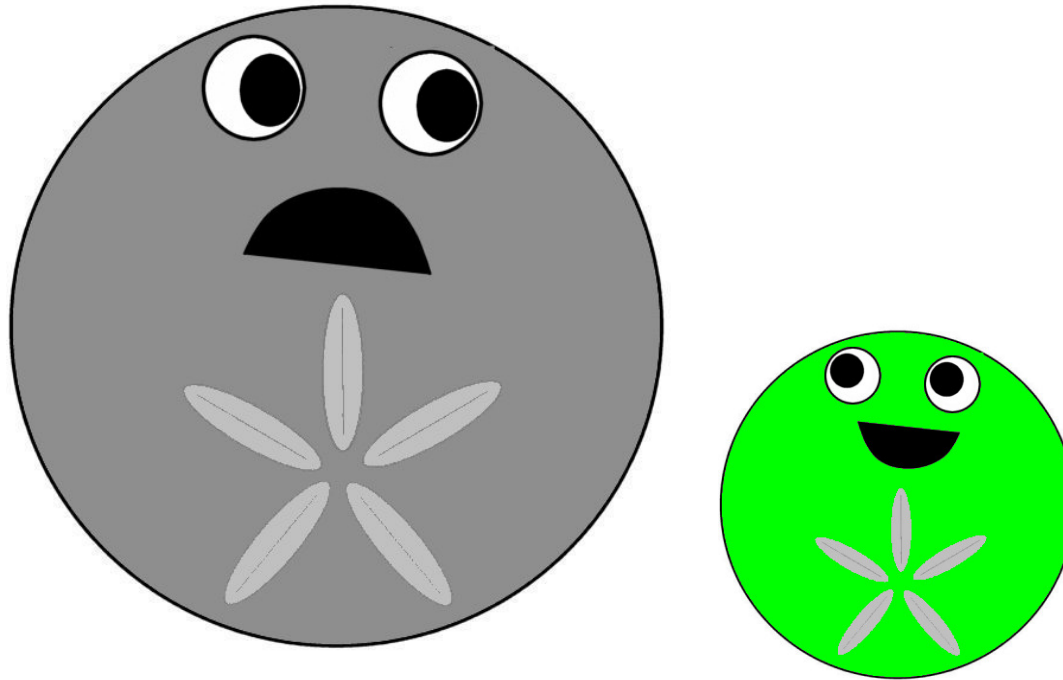

Bluebird decided to fly around the beach some more to see what else she could color today.

Just as Bluebird flew away mommy clam was looking for her baby clam. Cathy, where are you? Come out, come out wherever you are?" "Here I am, Look mommy, I'm blue now, said Cathy jumping up and down with excitement!" "Who are you," Cried Mommy clam? "It's me your little baby clam, Bluebird colored me blue. Don't you like it mommy?" "I almost didn't recognise my pretty pink clam that is no longer pink who is now blue, cried Mommy clam." "Uh-oh," thought little clam I don't think I like being blue anymore.

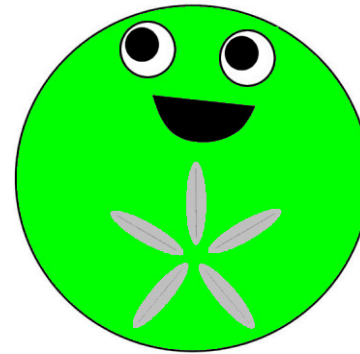

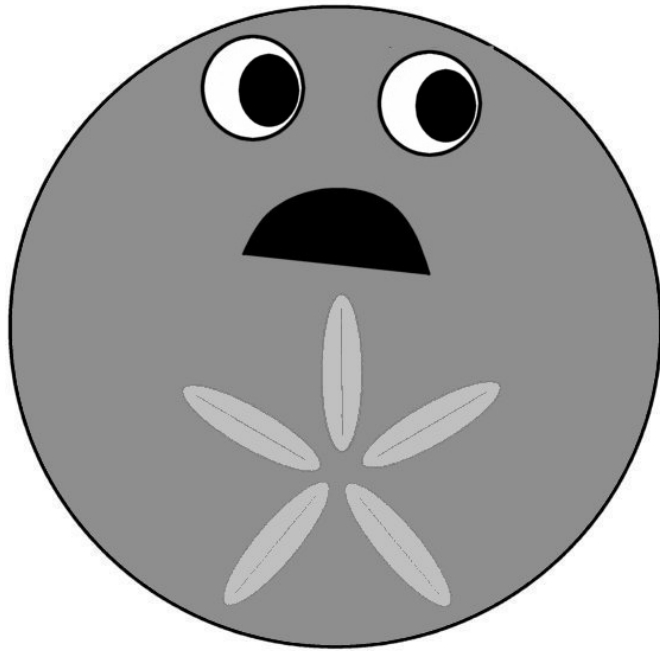

Baby starfish saw her mommy and yelled, "hello mommy!" But her mommy only looked at her and said, "I don't think I know you, you sound like my baby but my baby is brown not yellow," said a startled Mommy starfish. "It's me your little brown starfish, your cutey kins, your love bug! Bluebird colored me yellow. It's me mommy, really, it's me! "You have my babies voice, you have my baby's eyes, you must be my baby. I didn't recognise you being yellow," sighed Mommy starfish. Uh-oh thought little starfish I don't think I like being yellow anymore.

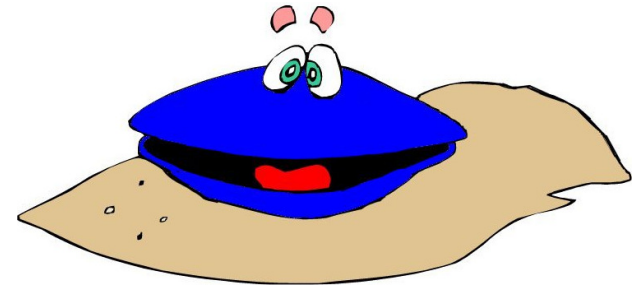

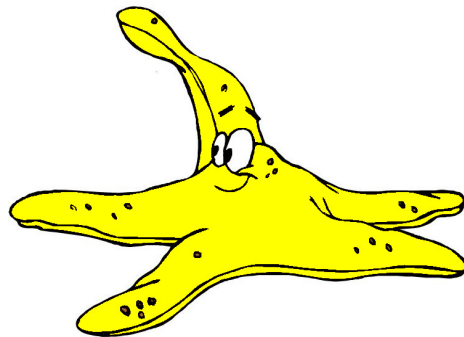

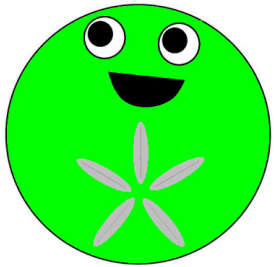

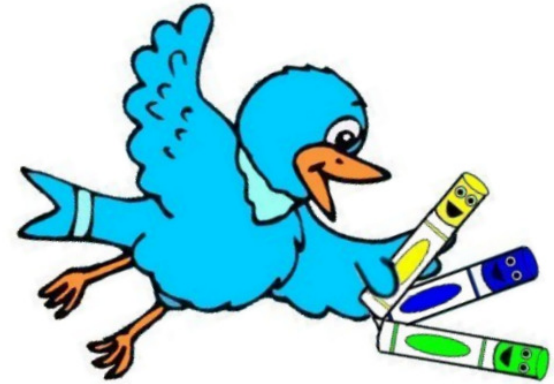

"Look mommy, I'm green now, like the grass instead of gray like a sand dollar" said Sammy the sand dollar with great enthusiasm! "YIKES, squeaked Mommy the sand dollar, who are you and what did you do with my baby sand dollar?" "It's me mommy, your Sammy the sand dollar," cried Sammy!

But his mommy looked puzzled and then said, "You not my Sammy, my baby is gray not green," replied Mommy the sand dollar looking very confused. "It's me mommy! Your cute Hammy Sammy!" smiled Sammy the sand dollar trying to get his Mommy to recognise him by his charming smile.

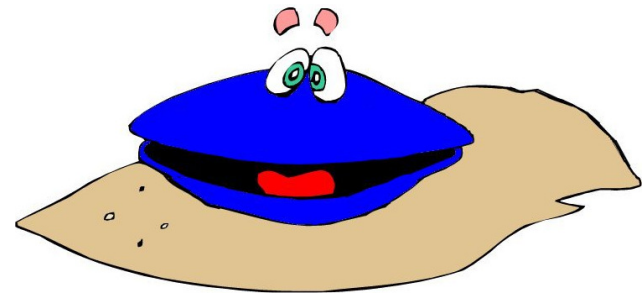

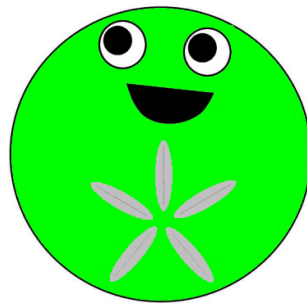

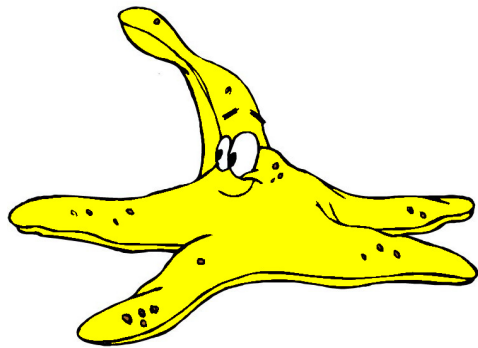

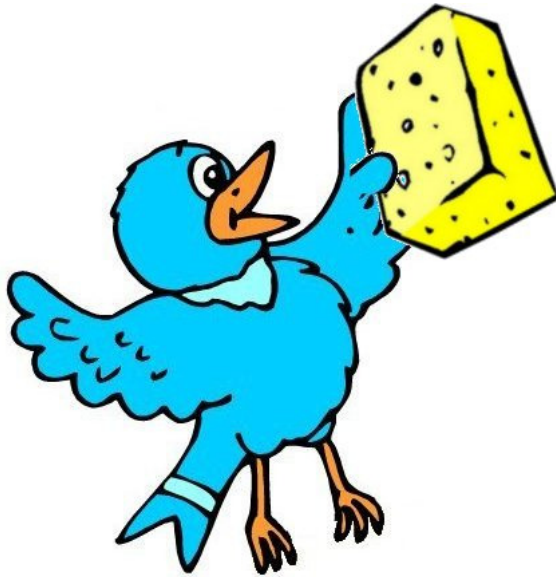

"Bluebird colored me green. Don't you remember me," asked Sammy? "Oh, oh...yes, yes, it's you my sweet little Hammy Sammy, I'd recognise that smile anywhere! Why would bird color you green?" "She colored all of her friends mommy! She found markers on the beach and wanted to use them and we didn't have any paper, so...

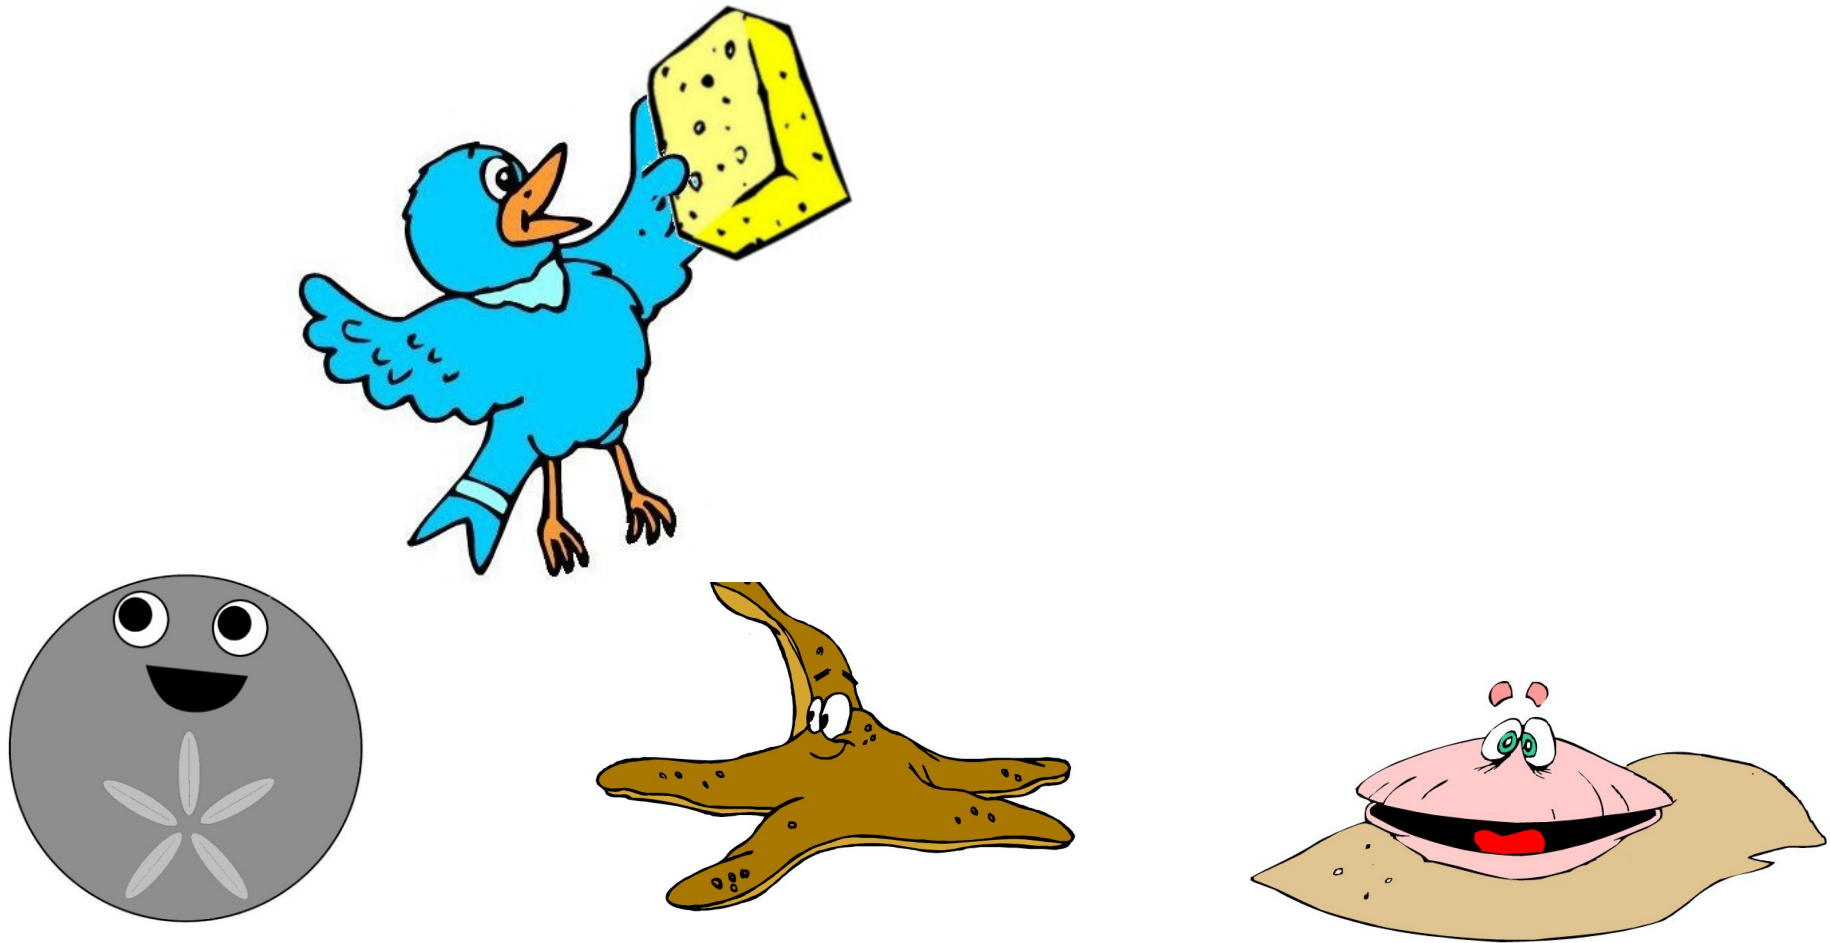

We were just trying to have fun," frowned Sammy the sand dollar, he was sad that his mom didn't recognise him right away. "Tell Bird to change you all back right away and that markers are for paper only! I like my Hammy Sammy just the way he was," said Mommy Clam as she hugged her sweet little Hammy Sammy! "Okay Mommy, I will" said Sammy! Sammy was beginning to think that he didn't like being green anymore.

Bluebird was flying around the beach when she saw her friends and they saw her. They all started yelling "help" to bluebird, "we need your help, our mommies want you to put us back the way we were, we need to change back! Can you help us?" "Yes, yes, yelled bluebird, I will be right back," and off she flew.

Bluebird came flying right back with a sponge so she could wash the marker off her friends. "I'm sorry everyone, when I told my mommy that I colored all of you she told me to fix it right away! She said this sponge would work great!" "They all shouted Wahoo," excited to be put back to the way they were before!

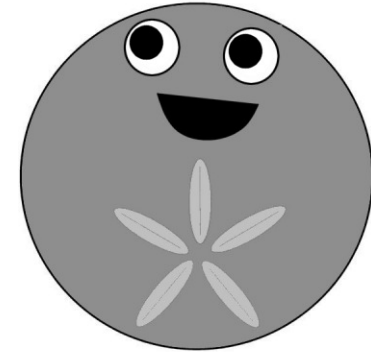

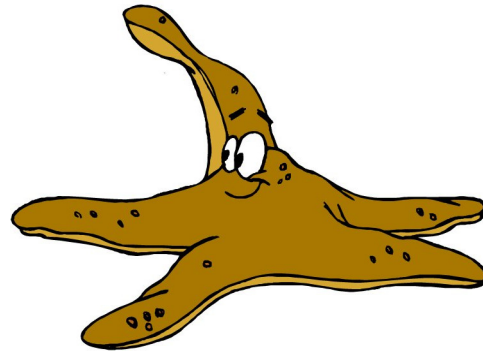

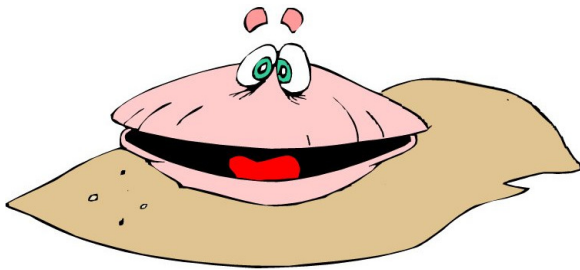

Whoa, I'm glad that's done, that was hard work, poor bluebird was very tired now, she grabbed up the sponge and waved goodbye to her friends, "I'm going home to rest, see you all tomorrow."

"Okay, yelled Sammy the Sand dollar, but please leave your markers at home!"

Oh, unless you bring paper to color on," added Staci the starfish and everyone laughed and laughed!

They all waved goodbye to bluebird.

Well that was fun being different for the day, but I'm glad im pink again said Cathy the clam I missed being pink. Yea, we missed you being pink too!

"I'm glad im brown again" said starfish. Yea, we missed you being brown too!

I'm glad im gray again, said Sammy the sand dollar. Earlier today when I saw my reflection in the water, I didn't know who I was, laughed Sammy, and neither did my mommy. She will be so happy to see me gray and back to being her good ol' Hammy Sammy! Yea, we missed you being gray too! The end!
